Emerald Horizon AG begins trading on the Vienna Stock Exchange

Listing on the Official Market – reference price of EUR 760.00 per share

GRAZ (AT), June 26, 2026 – Emerald Horizon AG (ISIN AT0000A3UZE1, ticker: SMRX) commenced trading on the Vienna Stock Exchange today, 26 June 2026. The shares are listed on the Official Market and traded via the Xetra® T7 trading system. The reference price is EUR 760.00 per share, corresponding to a pre-listing valuation of the company of approximately EUR 797.7 million.

The first trading day opened with the traditional ringing of the exchange bell by CEO Florian Wagner, CFO MMag. Philipp Pölzl and VP Prof. Dr. Robert Holzmann.

"Today marks the beginning of a new chapter — one that is now also officially defined by transparency, accountability, and a long-term commitment to building clean energy infrastructure for Europe and beyond." — CEO Florian Wagner

The ticker SMRX represents the core technology of Emerald Horizon: the market-ready hybrid storage system DUALstore PLUS combines an LFP battery with a molten-salt thermal store and AI-based control, making electricity from renewable sources reliably available around the clock. It is complemented by ADES, a thorium-based, accelerator-driven subcritical microreactor designed to deliver safe, CO₂-free baseload power — without uranium and without a self-sustaining chain reaction.

Ongoing trading liquidity is provided by the market makers Baader Bank AG and Hauck & Aufhäuser Privatbankiers AG.

ABOUT EMERALD HORIZON

Emerald Horizon AG, headquartered in Graz, develops technologies for the decarbonization of energy supply under the SMRX brand – from hybrid energy storage systems to next-generation modular reactors. The company's goal is secure, scalable, and globally deployable baseload energy without the drawbacks of legacy nuclear technology.
